35 NEW MAGENTA TITLES AVAILABLE SEPTEMBER 2017!

Introducing FIVE Wordless Texts
The five wordless texts are designed to develop the oral literacy skills of beginner readers. They will also introduce students to the structure of the narrative and information report text types, while encouraging them to retell stories and describe factual events.

PM RED

Students are introduced to the narrative text type and will meet our beloved PM characters, including the Bear family, Little Teddy and Monkey, and Sally. By the end of PM Red, students will be familiar with over 50 high-frequency words.

PM YELLOW

PM Yellow sees the development of narrative texts, and the median length of books is 127 words. Students will revisit existing characters – the Bear family, Sally, and Harry and Jet – while others are introduced – Jolly Roger, Toytown Fire Truck and Little Bulldozer – in texts that are age-appropriate, engaging and entertaining.

PM BLUE

The concepts explored in PM Blue become varied and focus on a variety of topics such as our world, friends and school, while non-fiction texts focus on the people around us and various occupations. At the end of this level, approximately 160 high-frequency words should be known.

PM GREEN

By PM Green, students should be able to recognise familiar suffixes – -ing, -ed, and -er – and they should recognise clusters of letters in words they meet in reading, for example, -ill in still, will and hill.

We have introduced 20 Guided Reading Cards at PM Green level, consisting of illustrated fiction and non-fiction texts featuring all the text types, with literal and inferential questions presented on the back of each card.

PM Sounds in Words

The PM Sounds in Words series explores phonological awareness in a meaningful context, enabling students to become aware of the sounds made by many regular letter patterns that can be found in high-frequency and interest words.

The series enables students to hear the sounds, say the sounds, read the sounds and write the sounds.
